I have reviewed the subject document and found that all sections evaluating air emissions in terms of compliance with action-specific applicable or relevant and appropriate requirements (e.x., p. 7-6) should be corrected since they incorrectly state that there is no maximum achievable control technology (MACT) for any source category. U.S. EPA has established MACTs for some categories, however not for site remediation. If you have any questions, please contact me at 886-6543.
